Highlights

- Six universities increased extramural R&D expenditures from the previous year (EKU, KSU, NKU, UK, UofL, and WKU) while two declined (MoSU and MuSU).
- Six universities (EKU, MoSU, MuSU, NKU, UofL, and WKU) have exceeded their 2007 performance goals ahead of schedule. 2007 results will be available next year.

About this measure

This indicator measures each public university's annual research and development expenditures, which include state, federal, and corporate research dollars and exclude university-funded research. This measure is an important index of Kentucky's intellectual capital and potential for economic growth in a global economy.
