

Ready or Not Here They Come: Kentucky's New Undergraduates
Monday, September 17, 2007

Take Home Questions for Regents and Trustees

1. To what degree are the state's demographic trends toward increased immigration, minority residents, or adult populations in need of postsecondary education evident in the areas your institution serves?
2. How does your institution's enrollment management plan incorporate anticipated changes in undergraduate demographics?
3. What services will be in greater need on the campus given future student populations? How will current approaches to delivering academic programs, advising, and student services need to change?
4. Does the institution have processes in place to measure the success of nontraditional students and hold itself accountable?
5. What is the institution doing to encourage talent development in the region or state's population through "growing our own" or attracting an educated workforce from outside the state?
6. How can the institution support the state's efforts in improving regional economies and cultures to attract and retain college graduates to meet our double the numbers goal?